Neuronal and nonneuronal networks in the lamprey spinal cord. The optic and vestibulospinal tracts in the lamprey spinal cord is composed of simple relay and multiple inhibitory neurons which are connected to contralaterally projecting excitatory and inhibitory interneurons. Neural networks involved in motor coordination, regulation of the neuromuscular junction, touch and escape responses and visual and vestibular information processing are thus distributed in small clusters on the dorsal and ventral aspect of the spinal cord. Possible mechanisms of signal transduction within neuronal networks are discussed. Our goals are to determine if the ERAD pathway that targets von Willebrand's disease (vWD)
